SCHOOL MOOD REFLECTIONS-There are millions of pupils going to school these days and each one has its own individual reactions to the opening of the 1960-61 season. Photographer Roderick MacLeod captured a few of these early morning moods during initial ceremonies at Analomink Elementary Schools in Analomink. The reactions-and lack of same-were committed by a few of the school's student body. In extreme left photo, school work can't come too fast for Scott Hardy; next is Mrs. Gerald Miller and Kenneth Dailey. This is the first teaching year for Mrs. Miller and Kenneth is playing it cool to get on the right side of the charming instructor. The above principals are Billy Jean Widmer and David Hughes, who aren't too sure yet whether they are going to like this early-morning chore. David's reactions are indescribably clear. Alone in her moods, Lillian Whitmore (extreme right) seems to be saying ... "It's not bad but ..."

Urges Special Railroad Group

CHICAGO (AP) - U.S. Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell yesterday suggested a special commission be set up to study a work rules dispute between five railroad brotherhoods and the nation's railways.

Executives of the five brotherhoods who met with Mitchell planned to submit their work rules proposals to railroad management during a meeting Wed-

Resday in Union Station. A labor department spokesman said Mitchell will attend the meeting and present to both parties his suggestion that a commission be set up - outside the Railway Labor Act to make a nationwide study of work rules and make recommendations to both parties.

Food And People

"population explosion" is provided by the latest United Nations report. It shows that there are 48 million more mouths to feed each year.

This increase, U.N. notes, is due not to any sharp rise in birth rates but to a steady decline in infant mortality and death rates in many countries.

Thus modern science is responsible for the increased population rate. And science must solve the problems that will arise as the world's population continues to climb from its present 2.9 billion to an expected 6.9 billion in the Scientific efforts to stabilize the ratio threat to human survival.

New information about the world between food and population will encounter their greatest challenge in Asia and Africa, where the highest birth rates still obtain.

> According to U.N. figures, these relatively backward areas will account for 60 per cent of the world's people by the turn of the century.

Some observers are dismayed by the Afro-Asian prospect, but it is not hopeless, considering the progress already made toward providing new food sources and new food-raising techniques.

If science can deal with famine as it has with pestilence, it would remain only for the world's statesmen to eliminate nuclear war as the third great

Looking at other factors in the picture, the consumer (and many an economist) has wondered how this phenomenon could continue. After World War II and the Korean war there were shortages to be made up which might account for high prices.

But now there has been time to make up production deficits and even build excess capacity in many lines.

As a matter of fact, there is a notable softening of prices in some areas. Ewan Clague, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, noted in issuing the retail index that there had been declines in prices of used cars and other durable goods but that these had been offset by rises in the cost of medical care and other services.

As to wholesale prices, the weekly index early in August-for the first time since 1954—fell below its comparable level for the preceding year. Observing this. Business Week remarked that, "What the recession of 1957-58 couldn't accomplish, this year's boomless prosperity apparently has."

In a way it is normal for change in retail prices to lag behind that in wholesale prices and for a rise in fees for services to follow one in costs of tangi-

Voter Sentiment

party strategists in Pennsylvania - with a presidential election only 2 months

It is a fact that most of these top party leaders - on both sides of the political fence are no more certain today as to how Pennsylvania's bulging electorate stands than they were a year ago.

This of course discounts the habitually wild and usually fantastic claims of victory predicted routinely in pre-election statements by "front men" of each party.

The early symptoms of shingles are fairly common to many At this point any such firm clue is missing. Three or four days before the rash appears, you may notice

If the campaign is watched closely it will be found that candidates on both sides of the aisle are still in effect shooting wildly - searching desperately for the strategy shot that may drive home a campaign bullseye. So far neither has found it.

Most are actually uncertain strolling at this point whether this means a light or heavy vote turnout November 8, although Heller, on a using the trend in new registration figures established dur- ented fe ming the past few weeks it is medians in the general concensus of feeling among these old pols that a heavy vote can be expected. On the other hand and in a compartive sense, the gathering of interested voters at political rallies in this campaign to date has been only moderate for both sides.

Another striking point is the fact that in many areas registrants of both parties have indicated to local leaders their plan to vote in November but are apathetic in getting out and working for or in behalf of party candidates.

Additionally - and this has hit both parties - financial contributions from rank and file party members so far have been sadly lagging this fall in many areas of the state.

In conversations with this column none of the ranking strategists of either party here in Harrisburg have been able to put a finger on the lassitude which they fear may turn into a full-blown uncontrollable hurricane by November 8.

On the presidential front Pennsylvania is a key state with its tremendous 32-vote electoral college bloc - and with only two or three other similar key states such as New York and California, could swing the presidency into the Democratic column should Democrats run heavy in southern states.

For Pennsylvania's Republican and Democratic leaders there is good reason to fidget Vivo went to New York over as voter sentiment remains a mystery.

Employment Dip Below Expectations

cline from mid-June to mid-July was slightly more than the normal seasonal expectation, the Bureau of Employment Security reported in its monthly bulletin yesterday.

The total employment in Pennsylvania fell 38,200 from mid-June to mid-July to reach an estimated level of 4,305,500. Farm employment was the only occupation that showed any upward climb. It registered a modest seasonal increase. All other major industry sectors registered an employment de-

While seasonal influences contributed heavily to the overthe-month decline, the bureau noted, the continued employment decrease in the steel mills and in related mining and transportation industries also was an important factor.

The employment total was down 65,100 in comparison with July 1959. This represented one and one-half percent.

The bureau reported that unemployment, also influenced by 16,000 over mid-June to a total last March and 5,000 above that of a year ago.

Excitement Over In Dingmans

Joan Matheson DINGMANS FERRY - "The excitement is over," said the lady in the Post Office. And so it is. Another summer ends, the children returned to school and the visitors depart. We are grateful to the visitors, for they are the largest business we have Also, we have many personal friends among them.

At the same time, however, it is pleasant to quiet down and turn to our families and neighbors again.

The autumn foliage will bring the last ripple of tourists, the hunters will come in November, but the feverish days are gone until next spring.

Causes Excitement

Joan Matthews, who is also Mrs. John Matthews of Dingmans Ferry, went to the eGneral Hospital in East Stroudsburg last week for the arrival of her sixth child and thereby caused all sorts of a ruckus at Turtle Hall. Of course she never intended this. A quick glance at her name in the Stroudsburg Record convinced friends of nine all over Monroe County that I had at least broken a leg. 'Tain't so. It was a happy event in the Matthews home. Mary Matthews, Mrs. Matthews' oldest daughter, tells me they are 'not yet' permanent residents, but hope to be so in the future. The newest little Matthews is a girl, seven pounds three ounces, and she arrived at

During the various entertainments of the summer, our organizations provide many prizes which are mostly carried away by happy visitors. Now, finally, one of our local inhabitants won something. Carl Bensley took home the beautiful hand made afghan from the PTA dance. Carl will have warm knees for his winter's TV viewing. The dance, incidentally, was a great success and the PTA reports a tidy sum to support the Lunch Fund for the school children of

Draws Flat Tire

The Dingmans Ferry Home Economics Unit held its second picnic at Child's Park on Tuesday, August 30. This time Ruth Snyder was the unlucky member, drawing the flat tire. The party was rained out briefly, but persevered and at last sat down to a table loaded with goodies appropriate to the skills of the unit, including raisin pound cake, apple cake and onion pie, which three items are specialties of the Swiss members.

Schuepp and Mr. Waldner entertained with selections on the mandolin and guitar and the Swiss quintet added song. The unit will hold its next and last picnic in two weeks.

The Dingmans Ferry Cub Scout Pack 75 had an overnight camp-out at the old CC Camp last week. Thirteen boys went, in the charge of Cubmaster James Albright, assisted by Harry Snyder and Cliff Shepherd. The night was cold but the blankets were warm and if anything, the chill added spice to the experience.

Provides Nursery

The Methodist Church now has provided a nursery for the benefit of parents who cannot leave small children and infants at home. The nursery is run by a roster of the mothers of the congregation, under the leadership of Mrs. Peter Love. Your little ones are assured of competent care while you attend the service.

UCP Heads Meet Today

"the friendly store"

This evening at the Pennsylvania Power and Light Building on Phillips street there will be an Emportant meeting . . . a meeting at which Harold Snyder, associate director of the United Cerebral Palsy fund-raising campaign will brief chairmen and captains for the drive beginning in Monroe County on Wednesday, September

Even as I type this, I can imagine the groans going up from my readers. "Another drive," they are moaning. "Another appeal for money." As a matter of fact, I might even be among the moaners if I did not have before me a folder mailed me by Mrs. Vincent Marek, director. In large white letters against a red background, the folder proclaims: EVERY 53 MINUTES A CHILD IS BORN WITH CEREBRAL PALSY. It is now seven minutes after two. Such a child has just been born somewhere perhaps. According to statistics, another similarly handicapped child will be born around three o'clock. When one thinks of this great tragedy in terms of minutes dotting the dial of a clock on the kitchen wall or the office desk, it is rather electrifying . . . isn't Cerebral palsy can come to anyone anytime, did you realize that? It is not necessarily a congenital thing but can be the result of any injury to the brain prior to birth, at birth, or later in life. Impairment of muscular control, in speech, sight, or hearing are the symptoms, singly or in combination. At the present time, only partial recovery is possible, and the United Cerebral Palsy Associations are working toward a broader medical research to discover new methods of treatment and. perhaps even more important, methods of prevention.

As the hands of my dask clock move on, I dimly visualize the 10,000 afflicted infants who will, statistics show us, be born within the next twelve months. Even more difficult to picture are the 600 000 Americans living among us right now with this affliction.

When the drive begins here, on September 14th, help if you can. Ask the organizations in which you are interested to contribute . . . and if you think you simply can't afford to give, loo's around at your own family. If your children are healthy and normal, think again, Maybe you're wealthier than you'd imagined!

Small world, isn't it? Mrs. Robert Lawson and her pretty daughter just dropped by with a gift of aluminum in answer to this morning's plca in The Wyckoff Shopper column, and mentioned that Mrs. Lawson had met a friend of mine only last week at Sayre. One of the patients at the hospital there was a Mrs. Male, whom I had known in Schenectady years ago. And so, I have her address along with the happy news that another daughter joined the Male family within the past five years, As I write, I can see Mildred Male just as vividly as I did fourteen years ago at PTA meetings . . . and while I'm sorry to hear of her illness, it's delightful to at least know her whereabouts once again.

Another letter arrives from the Monroe County Garden Club through its secretary, Mrs. Nelson Frantz, thanking Wyckoff's for cooperation in a recent public event through column and radio. As I've said before, it's a pleasure. Anything that benefits our area benefits Wyckoff's too, and we enjoy doing our part.
